What makes a corporate training session fun to attend?

Question by Time to change my name!: What makes a corporate training session fun to attend?

If you've been to a good training week that wasn't all boring lectures, please share what they did so I can pass it along to my attendees. Thanks in advance!

I work for a nonprofit organization that has frequent one- or two-day in-service trainings. Our most recent one was a team-building exercise...at a bowling alley. We split up into teams of 4-5 people and spent two hours bowling.

I had a great time even though I'm a lousy bowler. My teammates were very supportive and encouraging of me. I'm sure the rapport I built with other members of my team will carry over into our working relationships. (Which I think was the idea!)
