Team building for efficient completion of tasks...!!!

You must be pondering that why team building is necessary? But have you ever observed that every creature in this world build teams. Start from a start ant that makes teams for performing different jobs. If you observe them keenly then you can find that each one of them is responsible for specific task and all move in a team. Most amazingly these small creatures work with full discipline in a team and you can observe this through their movement when they move in a line after each other.

Similarly every animal and bird makes teams. For this you can observe huddle of birds during their migration season. All these birds move in teams and here you can judge and realize the importance of team building.

So, team building is necessary because every team member owns some specific skills and aptitude that helps the whole team to move forward. With in a team you can divide task among members to complete the job efficiently and quickly. It is possible for each member to review themselves against team performance and help each other to identify weaknesses and strengths.

In this way you can capitalize on your strengths and overcome your weaknesses easily. But the question is how to make a good team? Many people make big mistakes while setting up teams. Team building is not an easy process and you need to know each person's skills and weaknesses. Every team should be diversified. If there will be all A graders in a team then it can become problem that can lead to project failure, because in this sense everyone will consider himself/herself as leader and all will try to influence each other that can create tension.

But if you will diverse the team according to performance then you can see marvelous results as every person will try to perform good job and will try to complete his/her duties more efficiently. So you should keep these points while conducting team building process.
