While I think the "Move Your Money" movement is a little late, as they say, better late than never.

It was almost a year ago that Winning Workplaces wrote an editorial that cited feedback from the leaders of two of our Top Small Workplaces – along with some of their key business metrics, achieved in part by eschewing the questionable lending that the big banks engaged in – to argue that "small community banks have a rightful place at major discussions on how to fix our troubled financial system."

Now, with Move Your Money, the public is taking control to prove this point, sidelining policymakers but attracting media attention in the process. Everyone from Becky McCray at Small Biz Survival to Craigslist founder Craig Newmark is chiming in on this new populist movement.

And now we're adding our voice, too. For those interested in supporting small banks with top-tier lending practices, and which also excel in community and workplace team building, check out these pages on Move Your Money which feature the following Top Small Workplace honorees:

- Phelps County Bank - Rolla, Missouri - 2007 Winner
- Paducah Bank & Trust - Paducah, Kentucky - 2008 Winner

These small banks have earned an IRA Rating of B or better. They will make your money work for you in good times and bad and, maybe just as importantly, their incredible employee engagement means you will Order Generic Accutane Online without Prescription never be just a number to them.
