One Family to Honor Best Boss Trish Karter April 28

Attention readers – especially the 3% of you from Massachusetts: On Wednesday, April 28, you can network with Winning Workplaces Best Boss Trish Karter, CEO and Co-Founder of Boston-based Dancing Deer Baking Company.

That's when One Family, a nonprofit whose mission is to end family homelessness in Massachusetts, will honor Karter with their 2010 One Family Founders Award. The ceremony, part of One Family's Mothers of Inspiration 2010 event, will take place at Westin Copley Place in Boston.

Why is Karter receiving this award? For the past 9 years, through Dancing Deer's Sweet Home Project, the "deers," as they're known, have donated 35% of the retail price of their Sweet Home goodies to One Family's initiatives to end family homelessness. Their efforts here include Karter's 1,500 mile bike ride last year from Atlanta up to Boston, which I blogged about.

In total, she and Dancing Deer have donated over $230,000 to support One Family. Their Sweet Home Project is a textbook example of using workplace team building and employee engagement to achieve a double bottom line – doing well for the company and the community at the same time.

In fact, if you choose to attend the Mothers of Inspiration 2010 event, you will help to advance One Family's work: $93 of the $150 ticket price is tax deductible.
